RISING THIS FALL

Rice & Gold

We are so very happy to announce the opening of our incredibly delicious restaurant, Rice & Gold from Three Kings Restaurant Group. The Menu by Executive Chef Dale Talde, Features Modern Asian American Fare. Enjoy!

The Good Sort

The game has officially changed and porridge is the new food-fad this season. This tiny vegan Sino-Australian coffee shop is serving up healthy and scrumptious bowls of sweet and savory rice porridge with flavors like turmeric-coconut with champagne poached cranberries or an amazing pear crumble congee. And if you take just 1 Instagram food picture on your visit to NYC, you better make it their incredibly photogenic Rainbow Iced Latte.

Café Henrie

Enjoy the laidback scene at this funky-fresh "it" cafe is on Forsyth Street on the border of Chinatown and the LES (what the kids are calling "The Lower Deck"). Delicious, healthy food from owner/graffiti artist, Andre Saraiva, in a space he refers to as an "art project" (you may recognize his black & white figures in your guestroom). Try a Dragon Bowl, coffee from Counter Culture and the chocolate tahini brownie.

Dirt Candy

Mama: Finish all your veggies!

Me: *runs to Dirt Candy

Amanda Cohen's clean and crisp restaurant and chef's counter on Allen Street is a place where carnivores turn over a new leaf. Brussels Sprout Tacos, Korean Fried Broccoli, Jalapeno Hush Puppies and a fresh cocktail list are all on point. Always listen to your mama.

THE ART OF AUTUMN

Helena Anrather

Always follow the artists. The natural progression of NYC's art scene from SoHo to Chelsea to the LES has now lead us to the edgy and hidden spaces of Chinatown. Helena Anrather's gallery tucked above Elizabeth St. is showing the "must-see" multi-media work that is bringing us into the next generation of emerging and established artists.

Jeffrey Stark

The real estate-efficient "micro-gallery" has become the way artists can show big ideas in tiny spaces. Jeffrey Stark's single installation gallery has taken the concept to a new level and can only be viewed from outside through the glass facade.
