

14 dog-friendly hotels down the California coast

December 11, 2018

Clara Hogan

We love a good road trip. The only thing better: hitting the open California road with our furry best friends. But as much as we love our pups, they can make trip planning a challenge.

Sure, there's always Airbnb, but sometimes we want just a little more luxury. Luckily more and more hotels are recognizing four-legged family members as beloved guests. We've rounded up the ultimate dog-friendly stays down the coast, from Mendocino to San Diego, only selecting the properties where our pups will get the royal treatment as soon as their paws strut through the lobby. Save this list for your next adventure—and don't forget to pack the treats. Need to stay closer to home? We've updated this list with San Francisco staycation spots that welcome the whole furry family.

Carmel Valley Ranch, Carmel Valley

There are 500 acres for Rover to explore at Carmel Valley Ranch, a luxurious resort in the heart of Carmel Valley. Dogs can enjoy room service—with items like a beef marrow bone, chicken and rice, and ground beef with whipped potatoes—as well as dog beds covered with a Microfiber fabric, as well as an on-site friend, Roxie the Ranch Dog. Humans will also enjoy the resort's amenities, including on-site golf, numerous pools, a honey bee program, and mountain-top yoga. Miles of hiking trails nearby will be fun for the whole family. // $150 pet fee; 1 Old Ranch Rd (Carmel-by-the-Sea), carmelvalleyranch.com
